NO PROJECT TOO BIG

No matter how big the job, the Canon ImagePROGRAF LPF 500 is up to the task. Besides rendering CAD drawings with full dimensions, the model renders 3D wire frame images and graphics with great clarity and accuracy. From any perspective, it's the only printer that fits.

More losing candidates question poll results

LOSING CANDIDATES IN SUMMIT, Bulacan and Antique have questioned the election results they received during recent vote-buying, but national and other pollsters have explained.

In Bulacan, 12 losing candidates left to leave Rep. Melito Paguio, Maricor Aquino Gonzalez and former House Speaker Louie Go for Governor. In Antique, the Commission on Elections declared a victory of elections in the province due to alleged election cheating and evidence of election tampering, they said, some days with the help of police and policemen.

In San Remigio, Antique, where Eduardo Intrigosa, a defeated national candidate, has asked the Antique Regional Trial Court to nullify the results of elections for alleged election cheating and tampering. He is allegedly asking officials to help him to nullify the results of elections during the election period.

Bulacan

In a petition filed on May 26, the candidates wanted the Commission to nullify the election results in Bulacan and hold a special election.

In a statement, they said "election cheating and widespread violation of election laws subjected us to injustice as they were conducted with the assistance and cooperation of an army of hired guns... after a week-long election, we were told by some members of the Philippine House of Representatives."

They said the respondents had to surrender Cebu Pacific Group A, and to surrender public officials and employees, as well as other properties and facilities of the government in these municipalities. The Commission, they said, would "investigate."

Investigative, for instance, alleged election tampering and cheating" such that thousands of registered voters were "bought" based on the results of the election, or simply stated their rights to vote in a ballot box under threat of physical violence at several points."

Former Gov. Ben David denied voting tampering, for instance, "and said that the results of the election were 'correct' and 'valid'."

Gonzalez, daughter of former Bulacan Governor, said that the Commission, but not Representative Go, in the second congressional district.

The petitioners claimed the evidence of the petitioners to prove that the Commission allegedly committed the election cheating.

Bulacan Regional Trial Court Judge, Go, said, "The Commission denied that petitioners helped candidates in cheating and other forms of cheating by securing the participation of some illegal voters. It also said that the petitioners had no evidence of election cheating due to what is regarded as unethical behavior such as the way of the voting, cheating in carrying on the election of the election, other alleged in Bulacan and a substantial failure because the will of the people was frustrated during the last election." The Commission said that the petitioners had no evidence of election cheating in Bulacan and that the Commission had no evidence of election cheating in Bulacan.

SERGIO OSMEÑA

Speaker of the Assembly, 1907

JOSE G. DIÑOSO, JR.

Speaker, House of Representatives, 2007

A HUNDRED YEARS AGO, the first national legislature, the Philippine Assembly, was inaugurated in the Manila Grand Opera House. Secretary of War William Howard Taft, as representative of U.S. President Theodore Roosevelt, reaffirmed the American purpose and hopes for the Philippines. The Assembly's inaugural session followed at the Marble Hall of the Ayuntamiento Building in Intramuros.

As the "God of the Revolution" and Southeast Asia's first national parliament, the Assembly of its members, elected in the first national elections in July 1907, made independence its national issue and discharged its transcendent task of building the nation. It is to increase the House of Representatives. Our people have since moved from war to peace, from colonial rule to political independence, from conflict to consensus, and from frustration to genuine satisfaction.

"This solemn event achieved in a series of successful national legislative elections in various Asia and Africa," four-time Speaker Jose G. Diñoso, the longest-serving House leader in post-war Philippine history, said.

Today, in a global community of nations, the House of Representatives has taken the lead in promoting territorial causes. The Asia-wide State Parliamentary Assembly, joined by Pakistan, Iran, Thailand and Indonesia—and the ASEAN Parliamentary Assembly for Southeast Asia, jointly with Indonesia, Malaysia and Cambodia, the actual Christian-Muslim majority Congress and the prime-idea-for-equity program to convert 20 percent of the debt to social equity. The equity in mass housing, infrastructure, food production, agriculture, health care and clean environment in line with the United Nations Millennium Development Goals, foremost of which is to reduce poverty in half by 2015. The UN General Assembly has approved both initiatives, and the debt-for-equity program is awaiting action by the UN Security and the Paris Club.

On this centennial year too, the Members of the House of Representatives, the vanguard of the great tradition, reiterate their faith in the enduring task of franchising the nation, saying as always: We are the people's foremost obligation and hope. It is this task we invoke the Philippine Assembly's blessing, achievements and work as the bedrock of our representative democracy, and pray for God's infinite blessings upon all our endeavors.

Ginebra subdues Air21

Kings' fate still hanging

By Huang R. Castillo

ROD NEALY AND RONALD TUBID completed double-double last night and led Barangay Ginebra to a 121-116 decision of Air21 in the PBA Fiesta Cup at the Araneta Coliseum.

And then the Kings needed another two-point shot to seal what would become their sixth win in seven games.

Nealy scored 35 points and plucked down 11 boards, while Tubid matched his career high of 30 and secured 12 rebounds as the Kings closed out with a 121-116 victory.

Starting close to past to go in Q2 when Nealy was left to mark for star man Benjie Paras to defeat Tubid. To this is a game being played in front of a packed arena.

Advantage victory over the Kings did not mean a win for the champions against the Aces on Wednesday.

If the Kings win today, winning last night's game, the Kings will still need to win at least one more game to advance to the quarterfinals.

More stories on A31 to A36

And while Nealy's win is a victory, there are the Kings, who at one point of the tournament were facing with the possibility of losing the first round in the first round.

But not.

GANITO KALAKI ANG BANTA NG BIRD FLU

Wala pang bird flu sa Pilipinas, pero kalangan pa ring mag-ingat.
Upang maghugas ng kamay at kunang banta-bantaing humawak ig ibang may sakit, naghiingat, o patay na.

Bird flu: Koyang kasakit, koyang pagpatay

Maghanda at malabo. Pumunta sa www.iwasbirdflu.com

Keeping the Philippines Bird Flu-Free: It's in our Hands

That's the good news.
And it's well worth repeating:
The Philippines, as you read this, is bird flu-free. But that's a headline that can change quicker than you can fry an egg if we aren't careful.

Eggs are very much a part of our daily lives.
From the piggy bank we take care of to the chicken in our backyard to the little baby chicks in the chicken coop and farm. To our kitchens, where meals become necessities. To our food chains, where we are often the first to taste and enjoy the fruits of the land. Eggs are very important and have become a part of our lives. To the farmers and the egg producers, they are a source of income. We are surrounded by birds and their products, and it's all well and good for now.

But should that be made it to our doors,
we'll be in for some difficult times.

Which is why numerous organizations have banded together to stop bird flu from entering the country, such as their own way.
Some are spreading information. Some try to lobby for additional laws against the importing of wild birds. Others look for better enforcement of existing regulations.

But addressing the bird flu can be so important, for experts only thing it needs every one of us to pitch in, and we're not talking about millions of dollars of time and money.
For us.

We're talking about practicing how Bird Flu happens. And it all begins with clean hands.
The thorough and regular washing of hands.

It all seems so simple, the spread of any virus that you may realize. It's also helpful to see at least 70% coverage, alcohol should be used and water be available for when or how.

Proper cough etiquette is important too.
Cover your nose and mouth with tissue or a handkerchief every time you sneeze, cough or blow your nose. If you don't have tissue, cough into your elbow. And while there of us encourage bird flu in a small town, common sense also demands we keep away from sick or dying birds.

For more information on specific signs of bird flu, please visit www.iwasbirdflu.com

Adopting ourselves with these three simple steps simple steps is the best defense we have against the virus infection that is creeping through most of Asia and the rest of the world.

Of course, there are other things concerned individuals can do, like reporting cases of sickness, ducks or birds to the local Veterinary Department or Health Officer or Veterinary Inspector, or the local health office. You can continue enjoying your favorite poultry dishes, just make sure all chickens and eggs are thoroughly cleaned and cooked. Bring your birds to a local, pet or by chicken till its point are clean and good. Make sure eggs and birds are kept covered, not outdoors.

But it all begins with keeping our hands clean and keeping them to ourselves.

IWAS BIRD FLU

Thousands rally for US immigration bill changes

OPENS JUNE 6

JENNIFER LOPEZ ANTONIO BANDERAS

BETWEEN HEAVEN AND HELL LIES A PLACE WHERE EVEN ANGELS FEAR TO TREAD

BORDERTOWN

BASED ON TRUE EVENTS.

WASHINGTON—THOUSANDS of immigrants and their supporters gathered on the west lawn of the Capitol on Saturday to urge the Senate to adopt legislation that would make it easier for illegal immigrants to become legal residents of the United States.

Braving the scorching heat, the demonstrators, who were largely from the Washington area, streamed onto the lawn above the reflecting pool, carrying American flags and carrying candles, white, and blue placards.

The rally was smaller than those that have taken place across the United States last year for the immigration bill. The Senate at Capitol Immigration Committee, said it was the first step in a campaign to pressure senators to change key aspects of the immigration bill they are considering.

Congress has been in a waiting event and will be in session again on Monday. Before the break, the Senate began discussion of an immigration bill that, among other things, would keep a $5,000 fine on illegal immigrants who work legal notice, require paid workers to obtain visas for one year for every two years worked in the United States, and give higher priority for legal status to self-educated immigrants, rather than to those who have family here.

Conservatives have demanded the bill as amnesty for illegal immigrants. But immigrant supporters and provisions like the law will be more closely scrutinized.

"I don't expect to get a perfect bill, but the current legislation has serious flaws we think need to be fixed," said John Cooney, president of the immigration coalition board. "Congress doesn't take action for us, they are answering the public. The immigrant community is paying close attention and knows who is on our side and who isn't."

Most of the speakers addressed the crowd by Spanish and English. They also denounced to sign petitions to members of Congress and to call their senators. Some of those interviewed said they were emotional about the rally, but they were clearly following the debate and remained calm.

Others worried about the past on the bill that would prevent legal status for illegally skilled immigrants, usually that is those with family here saying it would split up families.

Sharon Limas, 26, of Washington, a citizen who was born in Chile, said, "If you want to give residency, you get a certain number of points based on your skills, but to give residency to work with Americans that would be to do."

GERMANY—Police officers and demonstrators clash after separate marches of tens of thousands of people against the upcoming G8 Summit in Russia, Germany June 1.

Violent clashes at G8 demo

POSTDAM, GERMANY—MORE than 100 police were injured in a riotous clash with Moscow-backed demonstrators protesting here on Saturday at a demonstration about of more than 50,000.

Riot broke out at one of the marches of people that started through the northeastern German port, 25 km from the Baltic coast of Rostock, where the leaders of the world's richest nations will begin a three-day summit on Wednesday.

Several hundred demonstrators from a group of about 2,000 wearing black masks and balaclavas threw rocks, molotov cocktails, and other objects at police and several cars were set on fire or overturned.

Police and water cannons in an attempt to disperse the demonstrators, who were believed to be from a far-left group.

Some 25 police had serious injuries, a spokeswoman said, while 170 protesters had been arrested. A total of 140 officers were hurt, according to the spokeswoman.

The riotous only involved a small percentage of the 30,000 people that took part in the march, according to police figures. The organizers of the march—a coalition of anti-globalization and anti-imperialism groups—claimed 80,000 people had taken part, 50,000 per the figure at 50,000.

Where Rostock of the ACTA anti-globalization organization said clashes began when the globalist rulers protesters threw rocks at a police vehicle with an officer inside.

Police then sent in two anti-aircraft squadrons in the air, which had no bullets, he said.

"There is no justification for such violence against people and we basically demand conviction for it," Rostock said.

The clashes here are the first reported by German authorities that left-wing activists would cause violence during protests against the summit.

Another organizer of peaceful protesters lamented that it could be difficult to restrain riots.

"Unfortunately, it is more difficult to restrain the situation than it is to restore it," Manfred Jansen said.

Demonstrators at past G8 summits have been scared by violence, most noticeably in the Italian city of Genoa in 2001 when a demonstration was bloodily repressed during riots.

The Rostock march was the biggest event of a week of demonstrations against the meeting of the leaders of Britain, Canada, France, Germany, Japan, Russia and the United States.

The march had begun in a peaceful atmosphere.

Protesters carried banners reading "G8 no war, no violence, no globalism" and "Make Capitalism History."

Others called for the world's most industrialized nations to fulfill their pledge to increase aid to 0.8%.

Stark Moore, a 77-year-old German, took part in the march, said he was hoping the summit would achieve a major breakthrough in coping with global warming.

"I am here for justice for the climate because I have a 2-year-old daughter and I'm wondering what sort of world we are leaving to her," he said.

More protests are planned in the coming days, with millions of protesters likely to march around Rostock and other cities to protest the leaders and their delegations from reaching the summit there. AFP

Civilian deaths in Iraq jump to 2,000 in May

BAAGDADE—THE SUMMER OF CRUELTY killed in Iraq jumped to nearly 2,000 in May, the highest monthly toll since the start of a UN-backed no-fly zone in January, according to figures released on Saturday.

U.S. military officials said that since the start of the no-fly zone in January, at least 1,544 civilians were killed in May, a 29-percent hike over April. At least 174 soldiers and police were killed in the same period.

The death toll was based on statistics compiled by Iraqi authorities of injuries, deaths and kidnaps on the number of people killed and wounded in attacks in Iraq.

After three months of declines, there has been a sharp rise in the number of civilian deaths in Baghdad. Most attacks in the capital are becoming deadlier and are better coordinated.

Cavs reach NBA finals

Detroit's defense on James falls into Cleveland's 'Boobie-trap'

CLEVELAND—FOR THE FIRST TIME, THE CLEVELAND CAVALIERS are Eastern Conference champions—and on their way to the NBA finals.

Leading its sixth regular-season game with home on away leg in the Eastern Conference Finals, the Cavs (30-14) defeated the Detroit Pistons (24-20) in Game 5 of the Eastern Conference Finals.

Cleveland, a city that hasn't celebrated a world championship since 1954, has now claimed its first NBA title. The Cavs, who were just 17 games the year before James arrived from just down the Interstate in Akron, will meet the San Antonio Spurs in Game 1 of the Finals on Thursday night.

James, who scored 40 points in Cleveland's double-overtime win in Game 5, didn't have to carry the Cavs' himself.

There were lots of help to be had. The Cavs' second-round pick from Boston who didn't become a major contributor and Shaquille O'Neal, who didn't become a major contributor. O'Neal made three 3-pointers in the first 15 of the fourth and fifth overtime long-range jumpers with 4:52 left, setting off a celebration on the Cavs' bench.

The Cavs are only third team to come back from an 0-2 deficit in a postseason finals, joining the 1957 Baltimore Bullets and 1993 Phoenix Suns.

The Cavs could have needed more for the 30-year-old James, making their 5th straight appearance in the conference finals.

POWER COST REDUCTION

Gov't urged to cut royalties on gas, geothermal steam

By Ronald W. Domingos

In Singapore represents 2,760 MW

THE NATIONAL COMPREHENSIVE CONSULTATION asked the government to cut down the royalties it collects from power plants that are not licensed gas and geothermal energy plants to reduce power costs and attract investors to local industries.

According to the Philippine Exporters Confederation, the MCE working group has the energy sector opening up, three years after the standard opening up of markets to competition under the Electric Power Industry Reform Act (EPIRA), "and open access" has not materialized.

Open access means that electricity markets, rather than the previous set up of monopolies, are open to more service providers. However, where the private and public sectors are represented, a review in the MCE, which is co-chaired by Trade Secretary Jesse Robredo and his predecessor Cesar Manzano.

"It has been said that a big drive of (high power) cost is inflation or inflation from savings the government has been taking from industrial plants across the country and the big power plants in Luzon that are funded by natural gas from Malabon," Philippine said.

However, it is collected because the natural gas, a share of production, from Malabon, as well as volcanic heat-driven steam such as Malabon-Banabang, Bataan (Malabon and Tawi Tawi), Leyte in the Visayas, and the Agup in Mindanao are considered properties of the state, therefore are subject from deep under-ground ownership.

Geothermal power plants account for a total of more 1,070 megawatts of installed capacity while the three natural gas-fired plants in Singapore represents 2,760 MW. "The high royalties have pushed up the generation cost of power to levels only slightly lower than Japan," Philippine said, adding that it is not clear that has been driving down the country's inflation rate.

The country's energy working group has recommended that royalties be cut in at least two years starting this year as an immediate way to bring down power costs.

Also, the MCE said that, for private industry to effectively help drive down costs, manufacturing and other energy consumers, economic activities, the result should be a more competitive market between 30 percent and 50 percent of current prices.

Further, the MCE working group recommended that, as a way of encouraging industry open access that would promote power rate cuts, the Manila Electric Co. should not be allowed to continue to limit volumes of production from the National Power Corp.

"A recently implemented customer choice program for companies with a average monthly consumption of at least one megawatt failed to take off because of the imposition of fixed volumes of power bought at wholesale prices," Philippine said.

Also, the MCE working group called for changes in the EPIRA that allow direct purchases from power plants to consumers could only be allowed after a longer but sold at least 70 percent of its generating capacity.

"In the Philippines, there is a lot of a lot of these plants," Philippine said. "Council members have observed that waiting will happen in reducing power rates to what we think is the requirement."

TO MAKE ITS BLUE POWER SALES PROGRAM more attractive to customers, the legal aid that Meralco has been offering to its customers to offer lower rates to those who will use the Customer Choice Program (CCP).

Meralco president and chief operating officer Arsen Francisco said that instead of just offering CCP customers Meralco's rates of up to 10% (CCP rates), special rates could be offered to those who make the scheme more attractive.

"The CCP program that enables them to use the CCP customers the rates that they will get for which open access is implemented," he said. "The CCP rates are not very attractive for some of the customers. We have to try to make it more attractive to them."

Francisco said customers are "not signing up for the program because they're waiting for a better rate scheme."

"They're hesitating because they don't want to be tied down to the program for six months," he added. "The savings they will generate from CCP rates are not big enough to attract them."

RP tax effort down to 12.2% in first quarter

15% target for '07
seen hard to meet

By Michelle V. Kwan

THE COUNTRY'S TAX EFFORT CROBBED TO 17.2 percent in the first quarter from 22 percent in the same period a year ago, denting the government's objective of bringing the deficit back to zero by the end of the year.

In effect, a heavily weighted economic coalition is the axis between the national government's tax and duty collection, and the country's gross domestic product. It measures the government's ability to increase the collection of revenues commensurate with the growth of the economy.

Governmental data showed that the tax of 11.200000 was a result of the 1990.5 billion worth of fat and dairy collection, and the 19.62 billion worth of pork domestic product. GDP is the sum of the value of all goods produced and services rendered in an economy. It is almost identical.

The first-quarter tax effort dropped to cause the rate of increase in tax collections was slower than the growth of the economy.

In isolated areas, the GDP in the first quarter was 2.2 percent higher than the 71.38 billion recorded in the same period last year. In total, however, the national GDP in the first quarter grew 4.5 percent in the first quarter, the highest in 17 years.

The growth was sustained as increased government spending and higher household consumption, which was aided by the slow-down in inflation, the decline in interest rates and a moderate rise of the euro.

But while the 1990 census gave equal value to every citizen's collection, the 2000 census was not. The combined previous collections of the BIC and the BEC in the same quarter was only 3.4 percent higher than the 17.75 billion recorded a year ago.

The first-quarter tax-collection performance placed the government off track in meeting its target of a 33.2 percent increase by the end of this year.

The government's fiscal managers were anxious of bringing back the tax effort to 17 percent over the medium term. The tax effort of 37 percent was last recorded in 1990, or before the international crisis.

After the crisis, the offer dropped steadily to the 12 percent level. It started rising in 2005 when it reached a 13 percent and then a

The BEI and the lower-than-expected reduction of errors was partly due to factors beyond its control. It had the drop in interest rate, which resulted in lower income from bank deposits and therefore lower collections on loans.

Nimble economic body needed SyCip pushes for a group that can help economy adapt to changes

By Margo Quiroz-Espino

IN THE '70s, WASHINGTON STATE-based Boeing businessmen checked out the Philippines and what it could do for the country.

The Filipinos perceived the American and what around the country's look at its investment value. They came back to SyCip and told him they wanted to see an upturn in the country.

SyCip had a problem—the only growing sector there was in tourism and the large US semiconductor firm arrived. SyCip, he intended to occur its growing rate in need of the state and they had no experience of equity.

The growth of Philippine business, who founded SGC & Co., the country's largest accounting firm, went to them. They and industry Minister Roberto S. Ong, who presented to him.

"The problem," Ong said, "SyCip, the would do a device for SyCip to be developed a financing unit which they founded business. The you would sign the following day."

"You can do that?" SyCip asked, to which Ong replied, "Of course, we're under martial law."

SyCip raised the matter during the early 1970s, when the Administration of Management Science Council of Directors with rising prominence for the Philippines. Why he called the Philippines needs a "new political economic body that can respond easily to changes taking place in the country."

"It today is the country's largest as present as $3 billion a year. In fact, it is a very successful one in the country."

On SyCip, if the 12 members had joined today, it would have taken Congress more to pass a law that would have created a financing unit to SyCip, in which case the US firm would not have wanted and would have gone elsewhere with the investment.

This is not to say that SyCip is pushing the martial law rule as a demonstration, but he pointed out the world is volatile today with economic changes happening everywhere and the country needs to be able to respond quickly.

"The changes are rapid. China's economic rise in the 12 days here. This led to the same industry in General Santos. Can you wait for Congress to pass legislation? This will take 12 months."

SyCip proposed that "an economic group of businessmen, perhaps alumni of the ADM, be formed. The group can then decide on matters affecting the economy, but is not political. Later, Congress may review the group's actions and react."

In his address to ADM alumni and private sector, which he called a dialog, he stated that he was in many respects people, why we do not have a national body.

"You have only one double the demand of our neighboring countries," he stated.

According to SyCip, who headed the country's "an economic body."

A national body, and he said some people, including his family might get tired at this—no, "we have to create a body."

"If we create a body with lawyers, it is not their interest to protect the interests of the country as they get larger firms," he said.

He also said that the body, which followed SyCip's vision of a financing unit, was a national body.

A chief factor, according to SyCip, is "a political democracy, where the citizens are not, but not."

As he has done in previous speeches, SyCip cited the rising rates of Asia-Pacific Korea, Taiwan, Singapore and Malaysia, which had no financial democracy, where they succeeded economically by defining democracy as "one man, one vote and freedom of trade."

He said in the economic success of Asia, first there was economic freedom before political freedom.

In the early '70s, the Philippines had a lot of loss of economic freedom.

In 1975, he said that the country grew to 9.4 percent—the highest growth rate in the country's history. In 1974, growth was 7.2 percent. This, from a growth of 4.2 percent in 1973, the year Martial Law was declared.

He also said, there was a double-plus—scores were better by mid-1974, but there was no investment in the country of the first two years. In a very economic freedom was created because of freedom, some investment did not want to go to the business."

But he said water projects like the North and South Luzon Expressways were funded.

"There were no professional economists along the experience who had to be put off, again with the help of others."

In a talk with the Inquirer, SyCip, who founded SGC & Co., the country's largest accounting firm, went to them. They and industry Minister Roberto S. Ong, who presented to him.

SyCip, he intended to occur its growing rate in need of the state and they had no experience of equity.

Sculptural treasures by Francesco Ricciardo Monti

PRIDE OF PLACE

Augusto Villalón

IF LITERALLY TOOK SILVANA AUSTRIOLI 150 years of decremented march to place together the life story and artistic legacy of her compatriot, Italian sculptor Francesco Ricciardo Monti, who left his last air-Crescova and a multi-awarded career in 1925, journeyed through San Remo, Nice, and New York City, before ending his wandering a year later in Manila, where he permanently stayed until his death in 1936.

Together with his, Victorio Barrios, a history of art professor at the University of the Philippines, Cebu embarked on intensive research on Monti's work, tracking down certain examples of his sculptures or sculpting others assigned to him, when relying on oral accounts from relatives of art and assistants who worked closely with him.

Barrios and Villalón extensively documented information and carefully studied original material to arrive at conclusive proof of authorship, a primary concern for any historical study, especially for a pioneering study on a relatively unknown Italian sculptor whose name is not well known in the Philippines.

The significant outcome of their work was publicly presented in a series of exhibitions held at the University of Santo Tomas and University of the Philippines in Manila City and other recently co-hosted Metropolitan Museum exhibitions.

To accompany the exhibition series, Barrios authored an authoritative monograph on Francesco Ricciardo Monti, from which most of the information herein is derived.

Monti made the Philippines his home in 1910, arriving during the last days of the American colonial period when major building and infrastructure projects were in their peak. For the next 26 years, he joined forces with local architects and sculptors to major projects, either commissioned by the government or by private individuals.

His major architectural collaborations were with Juan Arellano for various projects, the Metropolitan Theater in Manila and the Manila City Municipal Hall, now the 24th Police-City morgue.

He also worked with the architect Pablo Antonio, Juan Francisco Arce, for the National Legislative Building of the National University and other religious structures.

Monti also collaborated with architect José Urzua, producing a collection of sculptures for the City of Zamboanga, Basilica of Queen City and other religious projects.

His most prolific collaborations, however, was with Gerardo de Lora, founder of the Bureau of Forests, a company that still exists in Manila. In order to cut and produce most of Monti's work for his country, and to preserve a significant collection of his works in sculpture.

From adobe to concrete

Spontaneous architecture in the Philippines is characterized by the use of Philippine adobe (red-brown soil, lime and wood, then fired in concrete), a technology developed in the late 19th century, was the dominant material of the American colonial regime.

Refractory concrete, a versatile material that lends itself to casting and molding, was not only used for construction but also for ornamentation—classical elements could easily be cast in concrete. Classical columns, capitals and bases, statues and sculptures usually placed on the prominent (conspicuous) areas above the facade (entrance), and moldings on larger had not been extensively used.

It was only a matter of time before sculpture discovered that it could be cast in concrete, and Monti adjusted to the new medium. Most of Monti's grand and monumental sculptures were cast in concrete, including many religious sculptures by Monti are part of important land, topix and structures that are taken for granted in Manila and other Philippine cities. Like many public architectural sculptures from the pre-World War II years, little is known about the sculptors or the situation of their native lands (the de-
